

A That was in Brielle between Manasquan and Point Pleasant.

Q Who was the proprietor of that garage, William Conover?

A He was not the proprietor; he was the mechanic there; I think it was owned by a man named Pearce but Conover was the man who would know anything, and I am almost sure that it wasn't there at that time; I don't think they would have anything to do with the case.

Q When did you have it down to this garage before; was it a month or two or three or four months?

A I couldn't remember that at all.

Q Well, certainly it was a long time?

A Wait a minute; I am going to correct myself here now; no, sir, we had nothing to do with the Brielle garage that year. I will tell you why. I know I bought this car in March 1920. I used it the year of 1920, 1921 and 1922. I turned it in late that fall or early in the winter; late in the fall of 1922 or early in the winter of 1922 or 1923, turned it in to Howard Height at Manasquan, a Ford agent there from whom I had bought the car and he sold me a car just like it the following spring. So I know that all that thing about the Brielle garage is nothing, because Conover was working for Howard Height
